ONE moment

BY PENN PEG

Abhhhh. Motherhood. Wonderful, ain't it?

Mother chickens have mother people beat all hollow, if you ask me. Take a mother-to-be woman. Dill pickles and ice cream. No sleep. Aches all the time. Special stockings for swollen legs. Cockeyed requests at odd hours.

That's what I like about mother-to-be-ness. She waddles off into the underbrush weeks before the blessed event and that's the last you see of her. No squawks. No fuss. No bother. Just a mother-in-hin-ing.

And then one day you look out the window and there is the mother hen with eight little multi-colored chicks cheeping along behind her.

No 10-2-4-8 feelings. No sleepless nights. No crying.
Mother does it all. A paradise.

There's only one thing wrong with a mother hen.
She's even crankier than a mother people.

The wrath of a woman scorned, it is said. The wrath of a mother hen bothered, I say.

Three chickens pecking around the yard was bearable.
But 11, no. The chicks had to be cooped.

Have you ever tried to round up a mother hen and her chicks? Don't.

I never got half the tongue lashing and flogging from the minions as I got from that mother hen.

But I won, and now we're in the chicken business.

I might add that the father of this spanking new brood is Gertrude. Yep, Gertrude.
He was supposed to be a she.
Gertrude was one of a pair of chicks the miscreant brought home from a department store a year ago last Easter. As any city-boy-gone-country knows, chicks in pairs always come in a he and a she. So Gus and Gertrude became fixtures in our yard.

Only Gertrude, too, started sprouting long tail feathers, a huge comb and dad-burn it if one morning about 4:30 she didn't start crowing.

It's been a long time since I heard a crowing hen. I sadly concluded that all chicks in two are not necessarily pairs.

Gertrude's voice got stronger and more roosterish. Gus was with us until one night last winter when he got his neck caught between our mother dog's teeth. And that was the end of Gus.

The pecking order of all our critters is a strange one. Gertrude plays old Ned with Punkin, the mother dog, but he's scared combs of the three puppies. Tut the tomcat is at the bottom of the puppy pecking order and dally gets his neck chewed. But Tut gets along with Gertrude. Mathilda, the new mother hen, and Penelope, her lady friend, squawk to high heaven every time Punkin looks at them.

Lump, the two-year-old dol-ling tiger of the household, is underneath them all. The cats scratch her, the puppies maul her and the chickens peck her.

Being a human is not much of a distinction, in Lump's little mind.

Seniors Of 10 Years Ago Hold Reunion lands or distant cities and all will Following a bountiful picnic lunch, all departed, vowing to have another reunion in the near future.

For the record, both Mrs. Dean and Mrs. Carrithers went to Eastern High School to continue their teaching duties when the Middletown institution opened in 1950 following the closing of the Jeffersontown and other high schools in the area.

Mrs. Carrithers is still there as Mrs. Dean retired as a regular

C. H. Fields, director of information, Kentucky Farm Bureau Federation, has been named regional chairman for Regional Vi-of National Farm-City Week, according to L. A. Haggood, secretary of the National Farm-City Committee, Inc., Chicago.

Region VI includes Kentucky, Tennessee and West Virginia.
Fields' responsibilities will include working with the state Farm-City Week committees in these three states in setting up and carrying out a broad program designed to improve relations between city and farm people. Fields is also publicity chairman for Farm-City Week activities in Kentucky.

In accepting the regional assignment, Fields said that "tagging" to join with other Farm Bureau leaders throughout the United States who cooperate fully with the splendid work of Farm-City Week committees in bringing about a better appreciation of the inter-relationship of farm and city people.

Here in Kentucky, a number of city groups have decided that farm-city relations is more than a one-week-a-year job, and have already held a number of events to help build better relations in their own cities. These events have included farm tours, tours of factories, joint banquets, and many others.

Black said the money and stamps were taken from a metal cabinet after the intruders broke glass in a rear window to gain entrance. The theft occurred between 9 p.m. Monday and opening time Tuesday.

Meanwhile, county police are holding a 17-year-old Jeffersontown boy for recent breakins at

Donors Sought For Bloodmobile Visit To J'town Next Tuesday

With only six days remaining before arrival of the Red Cross Bloodmobile, it was reported Wednesday that the sponsors are at least 100 donors short of the number necessary to provide the minimum quota of 150 pints for the Jef-ferontown area.

The Bloodmobile will be at the Jeffersontown Community Center from 3 until 8 p.m.
Tuesday, July 8, under sponsorship of the Jeffersontown Area Community Center, Inc.

It will be the third visit of the Bloodmobile to Jeffersontown, but will be made an annual affair.

Citing the need for as many donors as possible, was pointed out that when the Bloodmobile was in Jeffersontown the last time it required a total of 92 donors to provide 81 pints. In other words, at that rate it will require many more than 150 donors to give the minimum quota of 150 pints.

Persons who have previously been rejected as donors because of jaundice or malaria now are acceptable. Prospective donors, not previously contacted, are urged to contact the pastor of their church, the president of their civic organization or telephone W. T. Settle at Andrews 7-6038 for appointments.

Settle said he has the master schedule and organizations that have not reported should do so immediately in order that appointments can be made to avoid any waiting. He said that each church and civic organization was asked to secure at least 15 donors.

The L.O.A. Class of the Jef-ferontown Methodist Church will prepare and serve coffee for workers, donors or anyone at the scene during the 3 until 8 p.m. period. McGrath's Restaurant will donate meals for the Red Cross workers.

A July 4 event in Jeffersontown will be a single game contest between the local nine and league leading Bloomfield in play of the Ohio-Salt River League. Game time is 2:30 on the school grounds.
Charles C. Holt, Jeffersontown manager, reports a single clash between the two teams Sunday, July 6, at Bloomfield.

In a game Sunday the local nine defeated Mt. Washington 9-0 behind the one-hit pitching of Jerry Martin who was striking out 12. A total of 13 hits was announced by the Jeffersontown boys.

Bloomfield retained its lead by defeating Olatona 3-2 in 11 innings. Pat Smith pitched 13 to gain the victory while the losing hurler, Hank Estel, fanned 16.

In the other league game, Springfield defeated Holy Cross 9-6 as Dennis Collier won his own encounter with a grand slam homer in the sixth.

Excellent Night Pasture Needed In Summer Months

By James R. Perkins Assistant County Agricultural Ext. Agent

Dairy cows need excellent pastures for night grazing during the hot summer months. Several years ago an interesting experiment was conducted on the grazing habits of cows at Louisiana State University. When the daytime temperatures were up to around 90 degrees the cows grazed only 1.9 hours per day to keep cool.

The cows spent 6.5 hours at night grazing. This amounted to 77 per cent of the total grazing time for the 24-hour period. The results of this study emphasize the need for the night pasture area to have a lush, productive, milk-producing growth on it. In other words, the night pasture should be as good as any on the farm.

All pastures should be clipped after each growth is eaten off and then by the rotational system be permitted to get a new growth of 6 to 8 inches in height before the cows are turned in again.

Studies made on the value of clipping resulted in over 20% additional pounds of total digestible nutrients produced per acre. Then, too, weeds are eliminated by clipping at intervals during the pasture season.

Newburg News

By Mrs. J. H. Shively

Vacation time out the attendance down some at Newburg Sunday. We are enjoying now more time for the Sunday School lesson. Large attendance in the Adult Class and such a good teacher. The Men's Choir sang "In The Garden" and did it well, but we missed Mr. Hardin's tenor. Sermon subject "He Knows."

Mr. L. P. Jones is doing fine with the much needed rest and quiet and two very attractive nurses, his wife and daughter, but he has two more weeks of convalescence and will appreciate visitors and cards and he also has a phone by his bed give him a ring with a cheerful message.

Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Hindle were Saturday guests of relatives in Newburg.

Mr. and Mrs. Billie Frey and children and Michael Frey returned from a two week's vacation in Florida. Michael's first trip and he enjoyed seeing the ocean.

Mrs. T. D. Price and Sara and Phillip have enjoyed several social functions since returning from North Carolina.

your FARM BUREAU IN ACTION

By C. H. Fields

REPUTED FARM BUREAU PRESENTATION

FARM INTEREST IN THE LABOR BILL

Farm Bureau is currently trying to make up its mind whether or not it will support the Kennedy-John Labor Control Bill currently under discussion by the U. S. Congress. The question is whether it is strong enough to correct the situation. You might wonder why a farm organization should concern itself about labor legislation any more.

The answer is simple. Farmers must produce and market their products in a free economy. The climate is created by both labor and management. In many instances, farmers are directly affected by actions of labor organizations, for example the Teamsters' Union, for example. It plays a vital role in the manner and cost with which farm products move to market and into consumption.

One of the good provisions of the Kennedy-John Labor Control Bill has resulted from the shocking disclosures of the McClellan labor investigation committee which has resulted from the shocking disclosures of the McClellan labor investigation committee which has resulted from the shocking disclosures of the McClellan labor investigation committee.

There are annual flowers for every purpose... all ones to be at the corners of your house and low ones to plant under the windows. Some will even screen your terrace for comfortable outdoor living. Others prevent erosion from washing down a slope. There are fast-growing vines to shade an arbor or doorway.

To help you choose the right flower for the right spot, here are some annual flowers used by a professional landscape designer when he wants to obtain a quick effect for a client. After danger of frost is passed, the annuals he suggests may be sown outdoors right where they are to flower. All of them should have at least six hours of sun to bloom their best. There are some that, as effective as an outdoor plant, are also to flower. All of them should have at least six hours of sun to bloom their best.

As a doozy accent and to soften the corners of your house, use amaranthus. They are also very effective. Tall marigolds, cosmos (pink and white) and angel trumpet (marigolds) are good. Along the high wall on a split level house, a few castor beans make a fine showing.

Under windows, along a terrace or patio and in the flower border, too, bush balm, pink, bachelor buttons, pink, white, calceolarias, yellow and orange, and dwarf marigolds and sinners are first choices. For greater variety blue salvia:

LANDSCAPING WITH ANNUALS

By Mrs. Vernon Smith

Here's a delightful garden planted along the side of the house with African marigolds in the background and an outer edge of petunias and French marigolds.

A house is not a home until it's furnished. And the grounds around your house will need their "furnishings" too. When we hear the word "landscape" the dollar sign promptly flashes into our minds. It should, for as in most things, there's an easy, inexpensive way out. Just landscape your grounds with lovely annuals.

A.C.P. Reopend For Sign-Up In County A.S.C. Headquarters

Cost-sharing for conservation practices for use of lining materials, rock phosphates and pasture renovation is available now. M. C. Brooks, chairman of the local A.S.C. Committee announced this week. Particular emphasis is given at this time of the year to these practices which may be performed during the summer and early fall. Cost-sharing to farmers has been made available. Soil tests are required.

Farmers desiring to apply for cost-sharing should take a soil sample of the field to be treated or seeded to the county agent's office. Hundreds of acres of grass seed in the county should be renovated and additional seed used.

Legumes may be seeded in August for the county A.S.C. office, which central part of the state, with fairly good results on grass seed fields which have been worked with a disk. Cost-sharing for use of fertilizers will be given according to seeds as shown by soil tests.

Brooks pointed out that the best conservation practice is that of obtaining good vigorous growth of a grass-legume cover. Lime is an important element in promoting growth of vegetative cover.

By using soil tests farmers will be enabled to use lime in fields where needed. Plant foods become more available when acidity conditions of the soil are proper. Lime may be used following a small grain harvest on old fields, or to land which will be worked and seeded this fall or in the spring of 1959.

Brooks emphasized that requests for cost-sharing should be made at the county A.S.C. office, Room 438 Federal Building, Louisville, before beginning the work in order to be eligible for A.C.P. cost-sharing.

BUY-NOTES ON FOOD

From Extension Service, Kentucky College of Agriculture and Home Economics

The summer is a time of many activities to keep the entire family busy, so it's a good time to the easy sandwich meals. Some forms of sandwiches are probably as old as bread-making, and they will no doubt exist as long as bread is made. Sandwiches may be the main part of the meal or served with soups and salads. In fact, sandwiches have become quite a "fixure" in the food habits of Americans.

The following suggestions for sandwich making from the American Institute or Baking, are worth noting as they may be a helpful guide to the meal planner during the "sandwich" season:

Use sandwich sliced bread. Take the two slices of bread that lie next to each other in the loaf. Matched slices will assure even edges. Leave crusts on bread to help hold the sandwich together. Butter, or fortified margarine should be at room temperature (not melted) before being used. Melted fats soak into the bread and do not form the protective coating needed to prevent moisture from soaking into the bread. Use a spatula for spreading soft fillings because the flexibility of the blade makes spreading easier. Spread both butter and filling to the edge of the bread. Sprinkle bread with sweet or salt pickles, relish, celery, green peppers and frankfurters or hard rolls and coarsely, lend themselves well for fillings, meats, or salad type fillings, and soft rolls and brown-and-serve rolls go well with toast-tens, cheese mixtures or ham slices, baked or broiled, with a sauce over them.

Nutrition-conscious meal planners use enriched or whole grain breads to boost the nutrient value of the family's food. In sandwiches the food values of breads are combined with those of meats, cheeses, eggs, peanut butter, fruits and vegetables that may go into the making of them.

By varying the bread, fillings, or both, an indefinite number of sandwich combinations can be created. Since bread is basic, varying the kind of bread adds interest to the sandwich.

Use enriched white, whole or cracked wheat, raisin, rye, and pumpernickel breads. Add sweet or salt pickles, relish, celery, green peppers and frankfurters or hard rolls and coarsely, lend themselves well for fillings, meats, or salad type fillings, and soft rolls and brown-and-serve rolls go well with toast-tens, cheese mixtures or ham slices, baked or broiled, with a sauce over them.
